Growing Violets in Pretty Pots

Ceramic two-piece pots

Two Piece Ceramic Pots

These pots are a good choice for decorators who want easy care too. To be successful

- 1) use a very light potting mix to avoid saturated roots, and
- 2) repot often- at least once a year.

Two-piece ceramic pots may occasionally be found in retail stores but are more commonly made by ceramic studio artists like these:

Self-watering Dandy Pots

Not quite as decorative, but pretty and functional, Dandy pots provide color and a reliable way to water. For success, use a light potting mix and repot often.

The Dandy Pots sells their pots through their plant shop and at other retailers including Cape Cod Violetry.

Hide the Pot Inside a Pretty Pot

If your violets are doing well in their ordinary plastic pots, consider hiding the pot inside a prettier container. Selective Gardener, a division of Optimara, offers many choices of decorative pots, many of which also have self-watering.

All of the businesses featured in our tip today are Commercial Members of the African Violet Society of America who support the society and provide reliable services.
